Answering these questions first can give the print team at Panaprint a good idea of what you are looking for.

The hardest part of a print project is deciding where to begin. Don't be shy about asking questions. The print experts at Panaprint may be able to suggest some enhancements to your project you didn't consider. We can also help you plan out your print budget and develop deadlines for your project.

Some questions to ask yourself about your project:

- Will the project include color?
- What size should it be?
- How many copies are needed?
- How will it be folded?
- How should it be bound?
- Does it require special paper or ink?
- Who will design it?
- When is it needed by?
- How is the project going to be distributed or packaged?
- What kind of conditions will it be exposed to (heat, cold, sun, etc.)?
